Lebron James response to Kyle Lowry and Warriors part-owner incident

kingjames There's absolutely no place in our BEAUTIFUL game for that AT ALL. There's so many issues here. When you sit courtside you absolutely know what comes with being on the floor and if you don't know it's on the back on the ticket itself that states the rules of the game. I mean he's been a part of the game, importantly PART-OWNER of the Warriors knew exactly what he was doing which was so uncalled for. He knew the rules more than just the average person sitting watching the game courtside so for that Something needs to be done ASAP! A swift action for his actions. Just think to yourself, what if @yle_lowry7 would have reacted and put his hands back on him. You guys would be going CRAZY!! Calling for him to damn near be put in jail. I mean he was just a fan who attended for the finals all because he was protecting himself. I've been quite throughout the whole NBA playoffs watching every game (haven't missed one) but after I saw what I saw last night, took time to let it manifest into my thinking I couldn't and wouldn't be quiet on this! #ProtectThePlayers #PrivilegeAintWelcomeHere

Babies born with severe MENTAL disabilities should be aborted/euthanized. What do you think?

This is about your garden variety human. I mean babies, who from Day 0 until however long they survive, will need 24/7 care and won't be able to effectively communicate, and just generally have an awful quality of life. They should be euthanised, even post birth. They are a drag on society, and take up another life because someone has to constantly care for them. And in adult life they take up isn't an asshole, it's an amazing human who's willing to give up years of their life to look after a disabled child. We need them doing important work like helping a child existing life if saying some of this is wrong is in your nature.
